

COVID-19 Oral History Project Questions

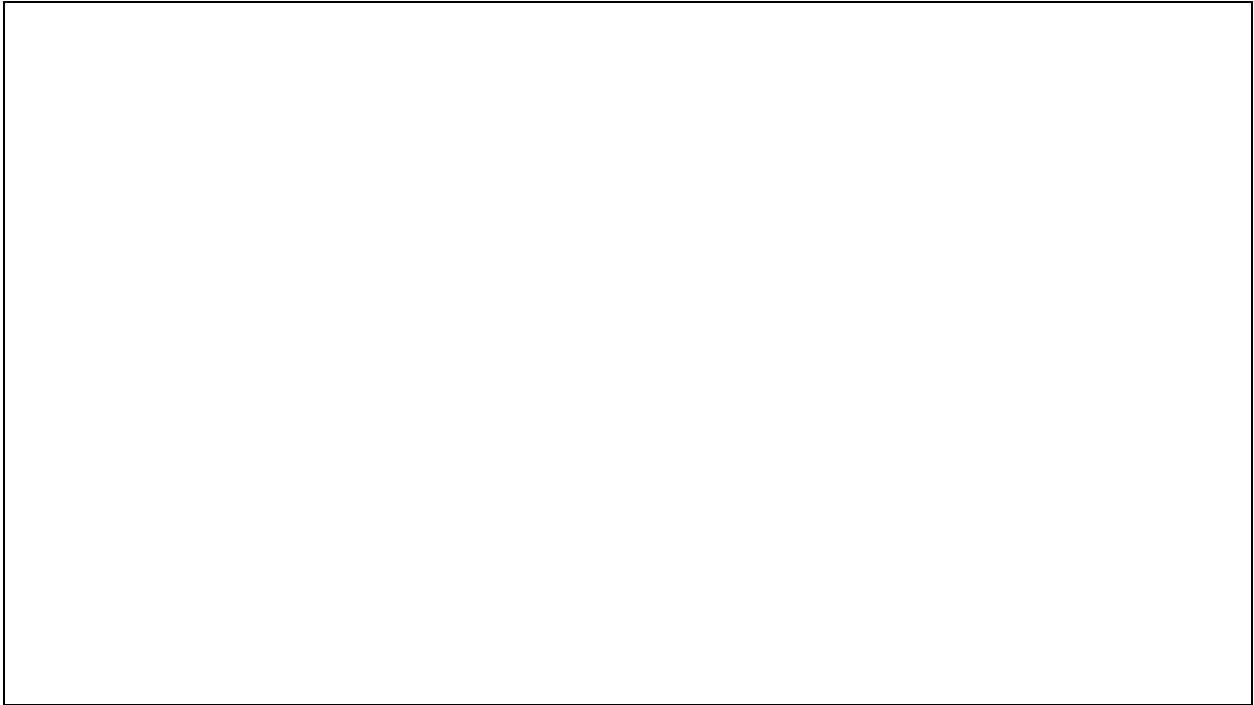

As you know, technology can fail or your brain can become overloaded with information as you listen to the person you're interviewing. This sheet contains all four questions that we will ask in our oral histories and includes space for you to take notes for follow-up questions and reference later. In brief, the questions are as follows:

- What do you know about the coronavirus?
- How are you preparing / have you prepared?
- How do you think this pandemic will change society? What will stay the same?
- What other crises have you experienced and how did you handle them?

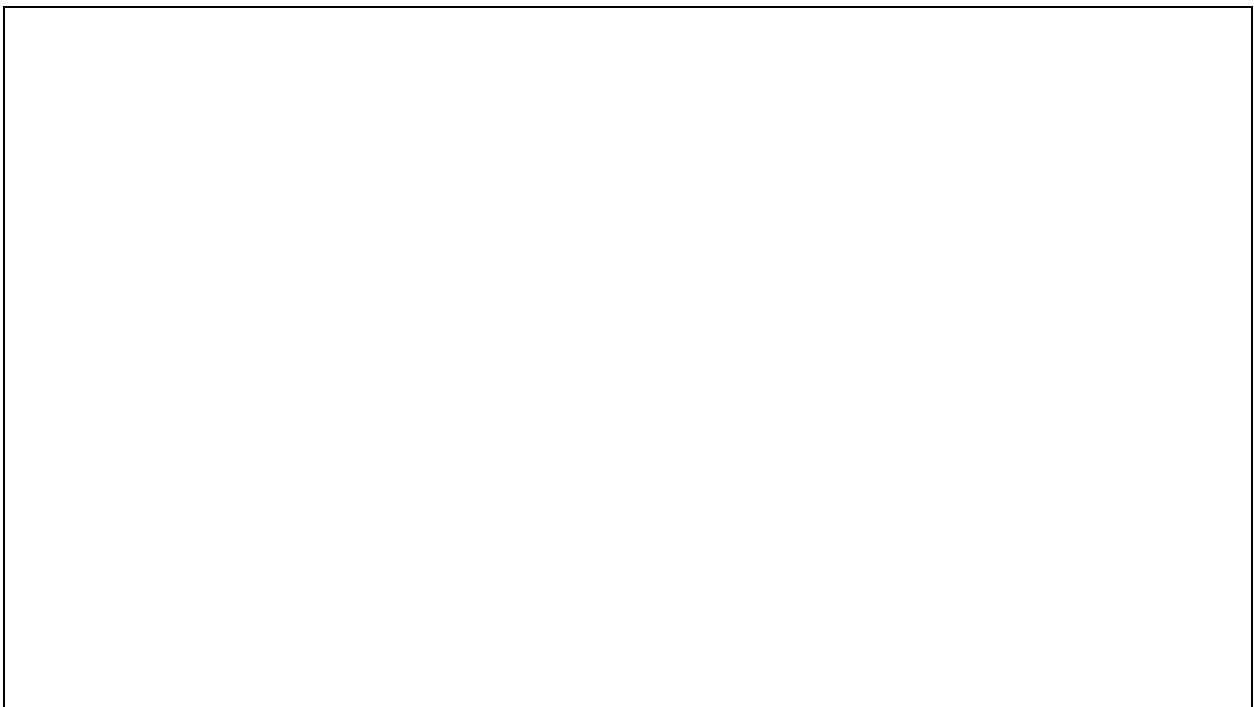

Take notes for each question in the space provided below.

What do you know about the coronavirus?

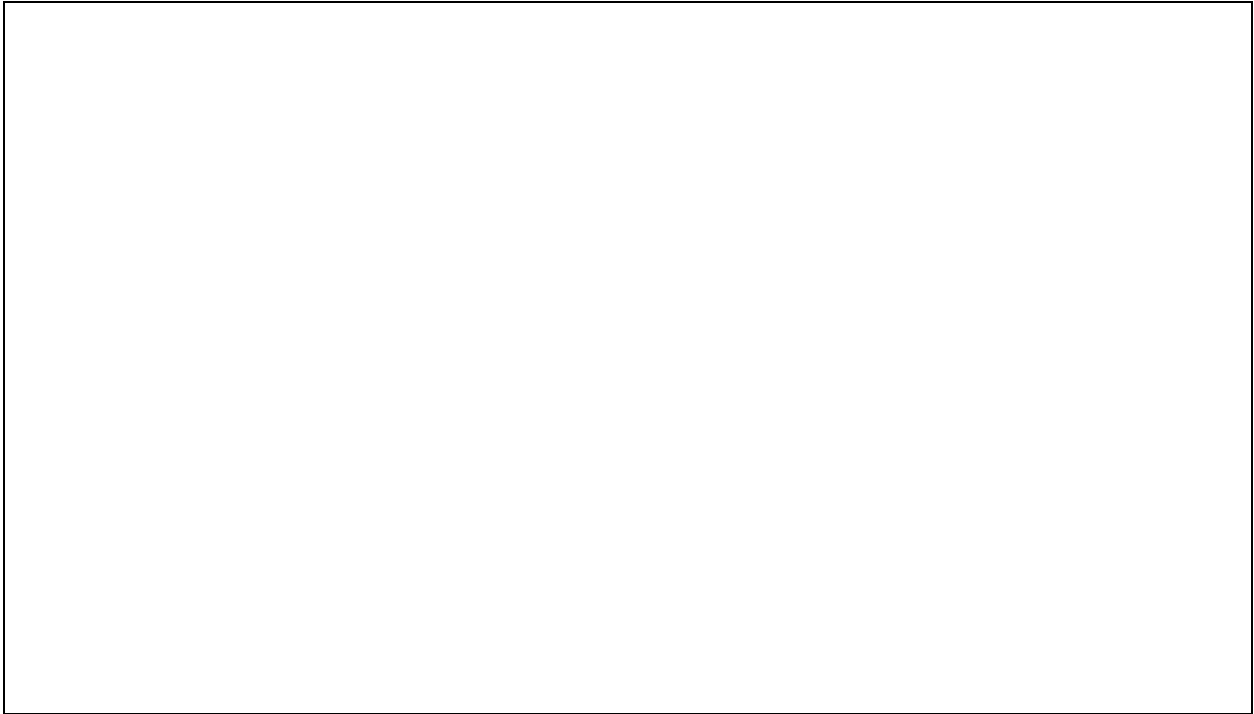

How are you preparing / have you prepared?

How do you think this pandemic will change society? What will stay the same?
